Jones made an address in German, and his special points against Bismarck, and in favor of a revolution in Germany, were greeted with deafening cheers. The Porter Inquiry.

WEST POINT, July 10.—Gen. Longstreet was examined in the case of Gen. Fitz John Porter. He stated that Gen. Jackson's force on the 28th was about 22,000 men, and that he was east of Thoroughfare Gap, and Longstreet was at Thoroughfare Gap with 25,000 men, divided into divisions of three brigades each. There were two battalions of artillery and several batteries, but there was no regular artillery organization. The troops were in fine condition. His troops were marching in support of Jackson on the afternoon of the 28th. His brigades got through Hopewell Gap [illegible] and the federal forces on the east of the [illegible] abandoned their position. Witness and troops [illegible] the direct road to Gainesville and then [illegible] Jackson's command, marching three [illegible] after artillery firing was heard [illegible] distance to Jackson at 9 A. M. [illegible] were deployed at once. Kemper's brigades were thrown in the direction of [illegible] road and other troops were in [illegible]. There was no cavalry with [illegible] the cavalry of the army was [illegible]. All of Longstreet's troops [illegible] by 11. Troops under Anderson [illegible] Warrenton pike, four or five thousand [illegible] joined Longstreet's forces at dark. He [illegible] no terrific battle raging that day from [illegible]. Gen. Lee's plan was for [illegible] on an engagement, and the [illegible] to make a reconnoissance which [illegible] the plan hazardous from seeing [illegible] of troops in front of him, which [illegible] learned were those of Generals Porter and McDowell. Because of the woods in front [illegible] thought his position a good one for defense. In view of the impenetrable woods it would [illegible] hazardous for Gen. Porter to take [illegible] around the road, and if he had attacked [illegible] would have been broken up [illegible] position checked the forces of [illegible] it was too late. If General Porter had [illegible] that day any time after 12 o'clock the [illegible] would have annihilated him, for [illegible] were then too much extended and [illegible]. The battle on the 30th was brought [illegible] attack on Jackson. Witness saw heavy [illegible] troops pressing the latter, and instead of [illegible] order from Gen. Lee to reinforce Jackson [illegible] placed the batteries in position, and [illegible] an enfilading fire against the troops, [illegible] three times, when he finally [illegible] and dispersed them, following till 10 P. M. [illegible] Porter had made an attack on him on the [illegible] he could have held him without drawing [illegible] the rest of the army.

What Base Ball Comes to.

[illegible] July 10.—In a game of base ball [illegible], an altercation occurred between [illegible] Lawshe and Samuel Venable. While [illegible] Venable on the ground, Carl [illegible], a boy 16 years old, a friend of Venable, came up with a bat and struck Lawshe [illegible] blows on the head, resulting in [illegible] to-day.

Resumption Practically Accomplished.

[illegible] July 10.—Secretary Sherman [illegible] to-day and said, with gold at [illegible] per cent., resumption is practically accomplished. I do not think governmental [illegible] for resumption will be necessary next [illegible]. I believe before the day fixed resumption will have been brought about as by natural causes.

A Close Call for a Mail Carrier.

[illegible], Neb., July 10.—John Lee, mail carrier between Camp Sheridan and this [illegible], was fired at by Indians this noon near [illegible]. One bullet entered a mail sack and [illegible] away the pommel of his saddle. He escaped.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, July 10.—The wool market sustains the [illegible] noticed last week. The demand is fair, manufacturers purchasing more freely than [illegible] for the present. California in steady demand, sales at 20@37 for spring. Texas territory wool in fair demand. Market now steadier for all kinds of domestic than for some time past.

"Under Fire."

[illegible] in London Truth.]

The first time that a soldier goes into action [illegible] that the shot that he hears whiz [illegible] is aimed at him. But if [illegible] he soon acquires a fatal feeling that he never will be. The eve of a battle might be supposed to be a solemn moment. I have been at several eves and I [illegible] perceived the vestige of solemnity, nor—so far as I could perceive—did it strike any [illegible] the next day he might be killed. The thoughts of every one were concentrated [illegible] supper, and then on finding a comparatively comfortable place in which to sleep. During a battle all not immediately engaged are simply bored. If ever a hand to hand fight takes place it is due to some [illegible] being in command on one side or the other. Most regiments engaged do not see the enemy. Attacking in columns and bayonet charges are things of the past. Shells and bullets are fired into a position or upon troops [illegible]. The victory is decided by artillery and breech-loader firing. Those who can concentrate the heaviest fire upon particular strategical points win. So mechanical is the whole affair that it is an axiom [illegible] that if one-third of the best regiment in the world be put hors de combat the remainder will execute a strategical movement to the rear.

The Silver Coinage.

[Washington Telegram, July 6.

It is estimated at the treasury department that the profit by the coinage of silver bullion into standard silver dollars is upward of $500,000. Strong protests have been made against the government buying any bullion [illegible] known to have come from American [illegible], but no notice has been taken of them, it being impossible for the government to ascertain where the particular bullion purchased comes from.

Counterfeits of the [illegible] dollar can be detected by the superiority of their work to that of the genuine.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

British Going to Cyprus.

LONDON, July 10.—The morning journals announce in an official form that Sir Garnet Wolseley will sail Saturday for Cyprus. He will take with him a brigade of British troops from Malta in addition to the Indian contingent.

Russian Troops Going Home.

VIENNA, June 10.—A telegram from Odessa announces that a director of a Russian Steamship Co. has left for San Stefano to prepare for a return of 125,000 Russian troops.

Outrages in Turkish Provinces.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 10.—Advices from Lagos report intense suffering among the inhabitants south of the Rhodope mountains. Numerous outrages have been perpetrated by Bulgarians and Cossacks and sometimes by regular Russian soldiers, whose design seems to be extermination or dispersion of Mussulmans and Christians favorable to them. In Domodia district 63 villages have been plundered and burnt by Russian and Bulgarian troops within the last two months.

CANADA.

The Montreal Nuisance.

MONTREAL, July 9.—At a mass meeting of French Canadians in Champs de Mars to-night about 2,000 were present. The tenor of addresses was in support of the mayor's policy, which the meeting endorsed. A meeting of the officers of Irish societies was also held to-night and the course of the mayor met the concurrence of the meeting. After the meeting on Champs de Mars a crowd of several hundred belonging to Griffintown passed through the streets singing. They halted at Orange hall, St. James street, and broke the windows with stones. Subsequently everything became quiet.

More about that Nuisance.

QUEBEC, July 10.—Three hundred Young Irishmen are drilling nightly preparatory to going to Montreal on Thursday. Excitement is intense. Battery B leaves for Montreal this evening.

Still More of that Nuisance.

MONTREAL, July 10.—The following troops will arrive on Thursday and go into camp: The 11th regiment from Argenteuil, the 50th from Hemmingford, the 51st from Huntingdon, the 53d from Sherbrooke, the 54th from Richmond, and the 65th French Canadian militia from Beauharnois, and in addition to these A and B batteries of artillery from Kingston and Quebec. Lieut. Gen. Sir Selby Smith will arrive to-morrow to assume command of the troops. The total strength of the garrison on the 12th will be between 25,000 and 30,000. Fifty thousand rounds of ball cartridges were brought from St. Helen's Island arsenal to-day. A number of Orangemen have already arrived in the city from various parts of Ontario and Quebec, as well as the United States, for the anniversary celebration. The Grand Trunk has forbidden employes absenting themselves.

LINCOLN'S ASSASSINATION

SOME RECENT STATEMENTS MET—THE EXECUTIONS JUST AND WELL DESERVED

Geo. B. Corkhill, of Washington, writes to the New York Tribune regarding the assassination of President Lincoln. He says he has in his possession facts never before given to the public—the original confessions of Payne, the statements of Atzerot and Harold, besides the personal details derived from persons then familiar with facts they were afraid to disclose. Speaking of John Matthews' statement concerning a package he received from Booth on the day of the assassination, Mr. Corkhill implies that the statement is inaccurate, and says:

Mr. Matthews' story about Booth shooting his blooded mare and warming himself on the April day by her dying heat contains more romance than truth. That the murder of the president was not the original idea of the conspirators is probably true, but that they were ready for murder at any time the result fully demonstrates, and I am mistaken in the facts now in my possession if I shall not be able to convince every unprejudiced reader that the evidence fully developed by most careful examination shows that the judicial punishment of these conspirators, one or all, without exception, was fully justified. I have as high a regard for the personal feelings of the living relatives of John Wilkes Booth as any one else, but I cannot think that a regard for them should prevent a complete and accurate history of this fearful crime being written, even if it should revive unpleasant subjects, and I have no other interest than to write a line of history.

Early Resumption of Specie Payments.

Chicago Tribune's Washington Special, July 5.

There is good authority for saying that Secretary Sherman contemplates resumption before congress meets—certainly before December 1st, and supposably by August 1st. First, because as it is probable that within two or three months the bulk of the customs will be received in silver certificates, the treasury is not likely to have much more gold from customs sources before January, 1879. Second, if resumption should be announced and become practicable, there would be no excuse at the next session of congress for greenback repudiators to execute any inflation schemes and repeal the resumption act. Third, if the treasury can resume in advance of the legal time it would certainly have an effect on the coming congressional campaign, and do much toward stopping the mouths of inflation apostles who are preaching the gospel of ruin and disaster in the event of resumption. The forgotten law of section 3700, revised statutes, gives the secretary power to purchase all the gold necessary for resumption by the sale of bonds, his judgment being the sole limit. He therefore deems it advantageous to the public interest to resume specie payments August 1st, and has not gold enough in the treasury. He may issue four and four and a half per cents to the full maximum amount authorized by law, or use every greenback in the [illegible] 1st or soon after.

Not a Romantic but very Vulgar Murder.

The matter-of-fact Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer ruthlessly shatters the beautiful and romantic story that has been told about Kate Southern, the murderess. She is not pretty, is of medium height, about 20 years of age, and a brunette, with dark brown hair; she is very ignorant, can hardly read or write, and has the twang of a North Georgia cracker. Bob Southern is a common ignorant boor, and the woman Kate killed was on a par with them. There was not the slightest scintilla of romance about the crime. The murderers surrendered themselves to get the reward, and Kate's mother got $50 of it. All the sensational and romantic details were the invention of a reckless correspondent.

The Kemper County Tragedy.

Over 2,000 copies of the little book published by the Chisholm Monument Association have been sold and a new edition has been issued. This book is a complete record [illegible] "The Kemper County Tragedy." It contains [illegible] the description of the assault of [illegible] where the victims were confined [illegible] by the brave girl [illegible] the volume will aid the widow of Judge Chisholm in removing the remains [illegible] family from the scene of Kemper county and in erecting a monument to their memory in some northern state.

"Take That."

(From the St. Nicholas Magazine.)

This is not slang, not a bit of it. It is but the translation of an inscription on an ancient Egyptian ball, a leaden one used as a kind of bullet and thrown from a sling. Sometimes the name of the slinger was put on the ball—so that the wounded could tell whom to thank, perhaps.

The daughter of William M. Tweed is living in New Orleans in destitute circumstances. Her wedding gifts, worth $7[illegible],000, would come in good use now.

THE BATTLE OF MONMOUTH

On the 28th June thirty thousand assembled on the battle field of Monmouth to commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the battle. Gov. McClellan was present, as were also several ex-governors of the state of New Jersey. The corner stone of a monument to be erected on the field was laid. The New York Tribune's report says:

Here were a good many [illegible] a hundred years ago. Dressed militia in their work-day clothes and Jerseymen of the Continental line under Maxwell in hunting frocks, and altogether it was a very busy Sunday in the little hamlet of Monmouth Court House, comprising then perhaps a dozen dwellings. In the neighborhood with Washington there were 15,000 men, among whom, it is worth remembering, were at least 700 negroes in the New Jersey and Pennsylvania regiments. Sir Henry Clinton's force was weaker. He had begun to distrust his Americans in Philadelphia, where 700 of them had enlisted for life with Pennsylvania damsels, and a whole regiment of Anspachers had been sent around by sea to New York. As it was, at least 400 of Knyphausen's Hessians deserted before they reached Mount Holly. But after all Sir Henry had 12,000 men in red coats and black. A battle on such a scale raging in the thick woods which then surrounded the village must have been a surprise to the good people thereabout, although they were not unused to war's alarms.

There is enough in the significance and circumstances of the battle to make it of interest to everybody. The remarkable number of distinguished officers engaged, the fact of its being the last great battle of the war, the fact that here was the first visible fruit of the long discipline of Steuben at Valley Forge, the incident of Sergeant Molly, the treachery of Lee, the terrible wrath of Washington, the power of his presence to arrest retreat and turn it into victory, the results of the battle, especially the one capital result that it at once established Washington in a position above the reach of jealousy and intrigue—all these unite to make this one of the most worthy days to be commemorated in all our history.

And worthily it was commemorated. The programme was a good one and fairly carried out. Crowds wandered over all the miles through which the battle drifted. Even Monckton's grave in the old Tennent church yard was not too far away, and as the pilgrims gazed at the blood stains in the old church, there was no irreverent suggestion that perhaps the Monmouth farmers imitate the example of the prudent Scots, who are slyly accused of brightening up with red paint at least once a year the traces left by Rizzio's blood in Holyrood Palace.

STEWART'S ESTATE

THE LATE MILLIONAIRE'S VAST ESTATE—ESTIMATED SHRINKAGE FROM REAL ESTATE DEPRECIATION

[Correspondence of the Hartford Times.]

Stewart provided in his will that all his business and the real estate directly connected with it should be inherited by Judge Hilton, who had been his confidential adviser for a number of years. All his other real estate he bequeathed to his wife. The actual value of the business and of the real property connected with it was not publicly known then, nor has it been made known since. The whole was estimated at $30,000,000, and I am inclined to think the figure was not much out of the way. It included the wholesale house at Chambers street, the retail house on Tenth street, and some twenty mills engaged in manufacturing for the firm. All the hotel property was outside of the business, and, together with a number of houses in different parts of the city, went to Mrs. Stewart. Those who speak of decline say that the business part of the estate is worth $5,000,000 less to-day than at Stewart's death, and some of them predict that five years more will produce bankruptcy. Such predictions, however, are sometimes mere folly, and this may be one of that sort. The estimated value of his entire real estate in this city in 1875 was $10,000,000. This included two stores, which were supposed to be worth $3,000,000. The up town store is built on leased ground, and the fee is therefore not so valuable as might be supposed. Deducting the value of the stores, which became the property of Hilton, the real estate bequeathed to Mrs. Stewart was worth $[illegible] the year before her husband's death. As much of this property is situated in parts of the city which are steadily growing backward, such as Bleecker street, Amity street, Ninth street, Tenth street, and so on, its value has undergone a serious decline since that time. Good judges say that at least $2,000,000 must be taken off for depreciation. They speak in the same way of the property at Hempstead, and with probably as much reason. There is no doubt that the whole estate has shrunk several millions since Stewart's death, but then it is not by any means certain that the same thing would not have happened if Mr. Stewart were still alive. Some very shrewd business men have become bankrupts in the past three years.

ATLANTIC CABLES.

THE CAPACITY OF EACH DOUBLED BY THE DUPLEX SYSTEM

In practical effect five new ocean cables have been laid across the Atlantic within the last few days, but it has been so noiselessly that the newspapers scarcely noticed it. The New York Graphic explains how it has been accomplished. It says:

We described, some days ago, how the [illegible] and explained how as soon as this was done the capacity of each cable was at once nearly doubled. It was not only as if new cables had been laid down; it was better than this, because the expense of the new lines had been saved, and the companies suddenly found themselves in the position of a railway line which had its track doubled without expense, or of a farmer who found his stock all bearing twins and his field producing two crops where one only had been expected. The insensibility of the newspapers to this sudden doubling of cable facilities is all the more surprising in view of the fact that the event furnishes an excellent argument for the immediate reduction of cable tolls—a reduction beneficial alike to the press and the public. Twice the business can now be done over the wires as could have been possible when the messages could be sent only one way at a time. This additional business can be obtained, no doubt, by the lowering of the rates, and it would be well for the journals to join in demanding this. In itself the successful adoption of the duplex system to deep sea telegraphing is a significant and valuable scientific triumph. Perhaps [illegible] it will be found that even more than this can be done, and the capacity of each cable [illegible].

The Coming Event Casts its Shadow Before.

(From the San Francisco Commercial Herald.)

An American gentleman who went last Sunday out of curiosity to hear Kearney's [illegible] said his blackguardism and incendiary talk [illegible]. He was asked what he thought of it. "I have [illegible] twins," he replied, "and shall make soldiers of both. It is the duty of every American to know how to handle fire arms."

Otherwise it Might be Forgotten.

(From the Philadelphia Times.)

If it wasn't telegraphed from Washington every day or two that the president's civil service order is going to be enforced, the people might forget that such an order was ever issued. The administration has been a whole year now threatening to enforce it, and just as long not doing it.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL

General Grant is quoted by the Paris correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer as saying that he is thoroughly tired of public life.

A good share of this country's troubles might [illegible] if Bret [illegible], Potter and Sam [illegible] were given consulates in some warm climate.

A new volume of poems by Bret Harte, with the [illegible] title of "Drift from Two Shores," will be issued by Houghton, Osgood & Co.

At [illegible] carved at his own request on the grave-stone of [illegible], the oldest [illegible] of France and Italy, who has just died at the age of 81.

In case of brutal treatment English magistrates can now exercise the powers of divorce courts, permitting wives to live separate from the husbands that abuse them, and compelling the latter to allow them alimony.

Orvil Grant says he has been misrepresented. He has said nothing about his brother's wishes for a third term, and doesn't pretend to speak for General Grant in political or other matters, which everybody is prepared to believe.

Some of the newspapers are using it against Mrs. Jenks that a few years ago she undertook to prosecute a claim in Washington and represented that she was not married. There is very little to induce a belief that she is. It is the unfortunate Mr. Jenks who seems to be married.

Gen. J. Watson Webb, the ex-politician and editor of New York, best known during his management of the Courier and Enquirer, from which Bennett and Raymond were graduated, and which finally was merged in the World, is lying dangerously ill at his house in New York. He is 77.

J. Milton Turner, our late minister to Liberia, punctures pretty effectually the Liberian emigration scheme. The government of the African republic, he says, is bankrupt—hopelessly insolvent. Most of the natives are very poor and satisfied to remain so. For all costume they wear a handkerchief round the loins and one round the neck.

Professor Max Muller's course of lectures upon the "Origin and Growth of Religion as Illustrated by the Religions of India" has just come to a close, the seventh and last lecture being on "Philosophy and Religion." The course was delivered in the Westminster Chapel House, and in consequence of the interest it created, each lecture was given twice.

LITERARY NOTES

On May 20th sale was made in London of the "Haley Papers," which comprised, among others, thirty-four letters from the poet Blake, five from Lady Hamilton and a large number from the poet Cowper.

The lecture by Prof. Max Muller "On the Perception of the Infinite," the first of the Hibbert course, has been published in German and Italian periodicals since its appearance in the Contemporary Review.

The volume of "West Point Tic Tacs," which is in press, will contain the largest poem yet produced by Bret Harte. It relates the love life of "Cadet Grey," and is enlivened by three stirring bugle songs.

The original MSS. of Schiller's and Goethe's correspondence were lately purchased by the publishing firm of Cotta, in Stuttgart. They were offered to the [illegible] Munich for 40,000 thalers and refused.

A whole library of Voltairian literature is being produced apropos of the centenary of the great writer. Among others is a brilliant book by Arsene Houssaye, "Le Roi Voltaire: sa Genealogie, sa Jeunesse, ses Femmes, sa Cour, ses Ministres, son Peuple, ses Conquetes, son Dieu, sa Dynastie."

A volume entitled "Characteristics of Leigh Hunt" has been brought out in London by an anonymous author, who in early youth was a correspondent of the essayist. Its object is to present to readers unfamiliar with Leigh Hunt some examples of his writing which best reveal his distinctive traits.

The London Athenæum, noticing the agreement of the Paris postal congress to extend the limit of weight of books by international post from two pounds to four pounds, thinks that the free delivery in America of English books will lead sooner or later to the abolition of the duty levied by the United States on books.

CATCHING LIONS FOR A THEATRE

HOW FIVE FINE FELLOWS WERE BAGGED AT ONCE—IF THE READER WILL ONLY BELIEVE THE STORY

Paris Correspondence Boston Advertiser.

Macomo, a large powerful negro of central Africa, had been informed of the mighty presence of a lion in his neighborhood. He lost no time in arming himself with a long cutlass, and dragging a young ox after him arrived at the appointed place. At the usual hour his majesty appeared. The moon was at its full and the strange trio saw one another as in broad day. The lion gave utterance to a deep significant growl, looked from the man to the ox and flourished his great tail. Macomo remained perfectly quiet for an instant, then suddenly plunging his cutlass into the ox he raised him in his vigorous arms and threw him at the lion's feet. The wild beast made a bound, sprang upon the bleeding body, caressing it for a moment as a cat does a mouse, and then, giving expression to stifled growls of joy, he drank the blood and crushed the bones. And Macomo—what was he doing all this time? Seated quietly a few steps from his guest, he opened a little sack, from which he took a bit of corn bread and dry figs, and began his own frugal repast. When his hunger began to be satisfied the lion raised [illegible] prise. Those of the man were calm and smiling. The lion returned to his supper. When he was completely satisfied he rose. Macomo did likewise. The lion made three or four steps toward Macomo, who remained motionless, and looking once more at his ox, which was but partially devoured, his eyes seemed to say, "This belongs to me." Macomo bowed. A last glance, friendly this time, and the lion quietly went his way, leaving Macomo to return to his home. On the following evening at the same hour the African returned to the place of meeting, where the half devoured carcass still lay, and shortly afterward the lion made his appearance, but not alone this time. As the hunter had foreseen, he came accompanied by family and friends. They were four in number—two lions, a lioness and lion's whelps. The repast was served, but not as on the previous evening in the open air. Macomo had built an arbor covered with vines, banana and palm leaves, and into this pretty dining room his guest entered fearlessly. Then crawling noiselessly within reach of a hidden spring Macomo touched it, and his four lions suddenly found themselves imprisoned in a strong iron cage, whose bars had been hidden beneath green leaves. Friends were near at hand to aid in removing the fourth lion [illegible] and they were about to [illegible] their work, when they perceived a new lioness crouched down upon the sand and licking her whelps between the iron bars. When the men raised the cage upon the cart she looked at them beseechingly, and when they all marched on she followed at a short distance with drooping head and tearful eyes. And thus it is that we have five lions instead of four at the Theatre Porte Saint Martin, five terrible, ferocious beasts, ready to revolt at any moment, and, although Macomo enters their cage and dominates them to a certain extent, they have not forgiven him for taking advantage of their confidence in him, and would ask nothing better than to treat him as Lucas was treated by his seven lions in the last days of the old Hippodrome—simply tear him to pieces. M. D'Ennery, not I, is responsible for the details of this interesting history. He seems to believe them, and many others have followed suit.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

A Blow at the Prosperity of Red Bluff.

RED BLUFF, July 9.—The Sierra Flume and Lumber Co. have suspended all operations at this place, as well as at all mills of the company. Financial affairs of the concern are such as to require general suspension of payments and business transactions. The Daily People's Cause of this evening contained an account of an extended interview with S. H. Jones, general manager, in which it is ascertained that liabilities were over two million dollars. Employes of the various mills are arriving on foot and by stage. No unusual demonstrations are being made, although the suspension will prove a severe stroke to the future prosperity of this place. Employes are apparently satisfied that they will receive their wages, as no attempt has been made to enforce payment of the same.

Caught and Lynched.

RIVERSIDE, Cal., July 10.—J. B. Kennedy, justice of the peace, accompanied by a constable, overtook and captured in the San Jacinto mountains Refugio Baca, the supposed murderer of Wm. Palmerton, on Saturday. He had a trial on Monday, but before any decision was given by Justice Kennedy an armed mob surrounded and took forcible possession of the prisoner and hung him.

Condition of the Bank of California.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—At a meeting of the directors of the Bank of California yesterday afternoon the dividend for the quarter was passed. The bank is doing as well as usual and fairly earned a necessary surplus, but on account of some old assets of former management, it was deemed best to omit the dividend. About $1,500,000 of capital has been inoperative since the re-opening of the bank. These assets were valued by D. O. Mills three months ago, and are as good to-day as then, but a cautious policy is the rule.

Assessment and Dividends.

Grand Prize mining Co. have levied an assessment of $1 per share, amounting to $100,000, delinquent August 15th.

The assignees of Hickox & Spear announce a dividend of 25 per cent. in favor of creditors, payable on and after the 12th.

Winnemucca's Son Tells His Story.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Chief Nachez, son of old Winnemucca, with an interpreter and several Piute chiefs, arrived this evening. A Call reporter interviewed the party relative to present Indian disturbances. Nachez attributes the outbreak to the action of authorities at Fort Hall reservation about a year ago, at which time a white man was killed by an Indian, who was captured and placed in confinement, but subsequently escaped. Authorities at Fort Hall, in consequence of the murder, disarmed the Indians on the reservation. This caused much ill feeling among the Indians, and during the winter the project of an outbreak was discussed by them, with the result as known. Nachez says Chief Oits is in command of the hostiles, but that at present he is suffering from severe wounds. Jerry Long, interpreter, states that the intention of the Indians is to gather to their standard all the tribes of Eastern Oregon and Washington territory, and then return over the route previously taken and drive out the whites and friendly Indians from Southern Idaho and adjacent region.

Charged with Murder.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Dr. [illegible] Favor was arrested this evening on the charge of murder for having caused the death of Mrs. Henrietta Bertram by producing abortion. The charge was based on evidence taken before the coroner's jury. Favor was held in $20,000 bail.

CHEAP AND GOOD LANDS

HOWELL PRAIRIE, July 10, 1878.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

One of our citizens lately procured from the land office at Oregon City a map of T. 7, sec. 1 E., which lies about 7 miles from Silverton and on the road to the shingle camps. About one half of that township is railroad or United States vacant lands. These lands are rich, well watered, generally easy to clear, and abounding in the finest timber in the world. For thirty miles beyond this district and running to the north and south about 75 miles are more than half a million acres of such lands, mostly governmental and subject to homestead settlers. For grass, timber, health, pure water and vegetables, this large district of country in Marion and Clackamas counties is inviting to industrious enterprising citizens. The exceeding fertility of these lands is astonishing to all beholders. From this district comes the vast amount of superior cedar shingles for use in our towns and rural districts along the river settlements up and down this valley. Within the limits of the land grant to the O. & C. R. R. settlers are limited to 80 acre homestead tracts, but outside the grant a full quarter section is subject to be taken by each settler legally entitled thereto. The railroad lands in this district are sold at from $1 50 to $2 50 per acre—on ten years time at 7 per cent. interest—ten per cent. payable annually. Or if full payment be made in hand 25 per cent. discount will be made. Settlers are fast taking up those lands and making for themselves good homes. The time of all Union soldiers serving in the U. S. army is counted on their five years time upon homestead residence. Full instructions are furnished to each homestead settler on those lands for their guidance. Here then is room for a population of more than one hundred thousand settlers who are willing to take hold and hold on and make for themselves excellent homes. Live healthy and enjoy all the comforts of life in this fine climate and in one of the best countries on earth.

The railroad from Salem to Silverton is a fixed fact, and the wagon road from Salem to Mount Jefferson pass is assured. Other roads leading into this section of our fertile slopes of the Cascade Mountains will be made as required. It should be borne in mind that vast deposits of gold, silver, copper, iron, coal, lead and limestone abound in this district. Water power abounds everywhere in it for all sorts of manufacturing purposes.

The vast bodies of cedar, pine, fir, hemlock and [illegible] isolated and but little known country is reaching far and distant lands. Thousands of persons are coming now into our highly favored state. They ought to have homes of their own. They should have all necessary information in reference to lands subject to homestead or for sale. The state has very large amounts of superior lands located under the various grants from congress. These lands will be sold on very favorable terms to settlers, mostly on time at moderate interest. Col. Cann, of Salem, is state land commissioner and will give full information about those state lands. Col. I. R. Moores, of Salem, is railroad agent for lands of that company. The local land agencies in our principal cities have great varieties of lands for sale on reasonable terms.

Let it be borne in mind that all original land titles of Oregon are perfect—no Spanish grants nor adverse legal claims. It is of course necessary that all purchasers of lands look well to the court records for mortgages, liens or judgments upon lands here. There need be no fears of Indian depredations in Western Oregon. D. N.

The Champion "Chin-Whacker."

(From the Baltimore Gazette.)

Mrs. Jenks is the most marvelous woman who has appeared in Washington since the days of Ann Royal. She threw such a shadow over Butler and the big members of the Potter committee last Saturday that they really looked like midgets. Then, after five hours of continuous chin whacking, she informed the weary and exhausted committee that she was as fresh as a daisy, and ready to go on for the remainder of the summer. Mrs. Jenks appears to be about the best man identified with this administration. She is evidently a special case. She should be provided with a place where the climate is salubrious.

No Triumph for England.

(From the London Standard.)

The delimitation of Bulgaria, though it leaves us with something much better than had been conceived in the treaty of San Stefano, cannot be regarded as in any sense a triumph for England, and it will be still less favorably viewed by the people of this country if it is intended to be the sum and end of our diplomatic exploits. For all practical purposes the danger against which we proposed to guard Europe remains almost as great as it was.

THE INDIAN WAR!

Mail Carried by Boat—Farmers in Umatilla Returning to their Homes.

UMATILLA, June 10.

Owing to danger from Indians the mail is ordered to be carried to and from the Dalles by boat. There has never been a time during the war that the mail could not have been carried over the old route via Umatilla.

Farmers who have been lying here during the Indian troubles are gradually going out armed to look after their crops and stock, leaving their families here.

Gov. Chadwick Gone to LaGrande—Howard Driving the Indians.

UMATILLA, July 10, 1878.

Gov. Chadwick left at 4:30 this afternoon for LaGrande. Will have consultation with Gov. Ferry at Pendleton to-night. Gen. Howard is in Blue mountains between heads of Birch and McKay creeks, and is driving the hostiles toward the Meacham road, which they may attempt to cross between Summit and Pelican.

The Indians who Crossed the Columbia.

DALLES, July 10, 1878.

Cattle men are driving their stock from Klickitat to this place for safety. Robert Nixon, from Pine creek, W. T., opposite Long Island, has just arrived here and reports small bands of hostiles in that vicinity.

A Chance to Take a Hand.

[Washington dispatch July 6.]

The land office to-day received this telegram from the register and receiver at Walla Walla:

WALLA WALLA, W. T., LAND OFFICE.—Can we close office to fight Indians, forty miles away?

Commissioner Williamson promptly replied: "Yes, but only so long as may be absolutely necessary."

Correspondence in Relation to Arms.

The following telegrams were received yesterday by the executive committee in this city:

UMATILLA, July 10, 1878.

To Executive Committee: As I knew before, Gov. Ferry telegraphs that he has no arms.

S. F. CHADWICK.

UMATILLA, July 10.

To Executive Committee: Have made requisition on Gov. Ferry for guns; no answer.

S. F. CHADWICK.

UMATILLA, July 10.

To Executive Committee: If on arrival of courier to-night I find Indians are prevented from coming this way I shall gather all available guns, and with escort press on to La Grande. It is my duty to ascertain the names of all killed and wounded and know the condition of the wounded. I fear a large number of herders are killed. These facts can be learned in detail only as the Indians leave their haunts. Have my requisition filled for 400 guns and ammunition when they come. Until I connect myself with telegraph office nearer scene of difficulty, word will reach me from this office. If our people in Eastern Oregon only had guns they would make this a lasting as well as a peculiar harvest.

S. F. CHADWICK.

Appeal for Aid.

UMATILLA, July 10.

A strong appeal is made to Gov. Chadwick on behalf of destitute families forted up at Pendleton for the necessaries of life, and the appeal is signed by five prominent citizens.

THE ATTEMPT TO CROSS THE COLUMBIA.

Particulars of Major Kress' Engagement on Monday—About Fifty Hostiles Supposed to Have [illegible]

The Evening Telegram has the following account of the effort made by the hostiles to cross the Columbia on Monday, which, it seems, partially succeeded:

About 9 o'clock on Monday morning a company of nineteen regulars and about forty volunteers left Umatilla on the patrol steamer Spokane and immediately sailed down to the scene of the first engagement with the Indians. Here a scouting party was sent out across Long Island. The scouts discovered a party of Indians, who had just crossed over to the Washington Territory side, in the act of packing their baggage for travel. Quite a number were also in the act of crossing the river. The scouts returned to the steamer, whereupon the craft steamed down to the lower part of the island. Arriving there Indians were seen traveling up the pass toward Klickitat valley, driving their stock before them. The steamer followed up on the west side of the island until within half a mile of the crossing place, where a force of Indians was seen behind the rocks, with horses and stock. There appeared to be about fifteen or twenty of them. Fire was immediately opened from the steamer with gatling and needle guns, and in a short space of time the hostiles were dislodged. They broke for the hills, quite a number of them, it is supposed, having been killed by the volley. The company of volunteers immediately disembarked and started in rapid pursuit of the retreating foe. The chase was continued until the pursuers were satisfied that all had been dislodged, when they returned to the boat. The Indians fled into the mountains and have not been seen since.

The steamer then sailed down the river until within four miles of the mouth of Willow creek, opposite Thanksgiving Island. Here a band of Indians was seen on the Washington territory side, driving their horses, having evidently just crossed the Columbia. The soldiers on the boat endeavored to speak to them, but as soon as the hostiles observed the steamer's movements they immediately held a council and started up the hills full gallop, leaving their stock far in the rear. Fire was opened with gatling and needle guns and one Indian was seen to fall. The soldiers disembarked as speedily as possible and started in pursuit, but the Indians had ascended the hills and disappeared in the basin beyond. Seven horses were killed by the volley and thirty were captured by the soldiers. Of these as many as possible were taken on board the Spokane, and the remaining ones swam across to the island on the opposite side. A large quantity of provisions, saddles, buffalo robes, dresses, etc., were also captured and taken on board. As the Spokane returned to Umatilla Indians could be seen all along the hills, both on the Washington territory and Oregon side, watching her movement. The first fight took place about 12 o'clock and the last about [illegible]. A strict watch is being kept all along [illegible]. It is supposed about fifty hostiles have crossed into Washington territory.

The Institution therefore is anxious to collect from every available source whatever is known or can be ascertained by special investigation of the antiquities of America, and it invites the co-operation of all interested in the work.

What it Costs to Move Army Quarters.

Washington special, July 5: Banning's bill, which pretends to effect a great saving to the government on account of quarters furnished officers, turns out to be a great delusion, as very heavy expenditures are necessary at once in nearly every city where military headquarters are established, in order to provide officers with government quarters. The additional expenditures at New York alone will be fully $200,000, and proportionate sums are necessary for several of the important though smaller points.

THURSDAY MORNING JULY 11 18 8

SAGACIOUS CRITICISM

"The puzzle is," says the San Francisco Chronicle, "how the Indians have managed so far to elude Howard's vigilance and push through this entire region while he is in Southern Oregon." It follows this sage remark with another which is offered as a kind of corollary, namely, "Present appearances indicate that Howard is incompetent for the command or unequal to the occasion." When a Pacific coast journal proves to be so ill-informed there is no wonder that eastern papers are still more so. It seems to be supposed that it is the easiest thing in the world to overtake Indians in the open country and annihilate them, though the Indians are well mounted, steal relays of horses whenever they need them, forage on the country and travel without incumbrance, while the troops mostly have to go on foot and transport their provisions on pack animals, because they can't rob and devastate the country on their march after the Indian fashion. Howard took troops from Portland and Walla Walla and started for the scene of the original outbreak in Idaho. Before he reached there the Indians had decamped and passing through Southern Idaho, had entered the southeastern part of Oregon. They had the start of him, a start they would unavoidably obtain while he was ascertaining what course they had taken. Bernard's column, apprised by Howard of the direction in which they were moving, pressed on from Harney and intercepted them. The engagement at Curry creek followed. Howard hastened on rapidly as possible and came up with Bernard. Perhaps it might help one who doesn't know what Howard was doing in Southern Oregon to reflect that he was directly in pursuit of the Indians there, and that had he not gone after them in that locality they never would have come to Northern Oregon. The Indians don't want to meet the army. Their policy is to keep out of the way of the troops, ravage the country and murder defenceless people. In consequence the troops have to follow them up over long and difficult marches. No one can tell which way they will turn. That depends largely on what course it seems best to them to take in order to avoid meeting the troops. Hence in this case they left Stein's mountain and came rapidly toward the north. It would be an excellent thing if these newspaper critics could prevail on the Indians to take a position and wait to be annihilated. In that case an Indian war would be a very simple matter.

CROP PROSPECTS

During the whole of the month of June it was unusually warm and dry. There was really no rain worth mention, though the average for that month usually exceeds two and a half inches. In consequence of heat and drouth late sown grain in many localities was checked in its growth and looked very unpromising. So far in July the days have mostly been cloudy and cool. In many places considerable rain has fallen. Four weeks ago this weather would have been more seasonable. It would have done the growing crops far more good then than it possibly can now. Yet we have information from several places that great improvement in the crop prospects is noticeable during the past ten days. The cool weather gives the grain a chance to recover, and there will be a [illegible] total failure was feared. In Umpqua valley the rain on the 3d and 4th was more general than in Willamette, and prospects are good for a fair average yield. Linn, one of the great wheat growing counties of Willamette, will not have its usual crop this year, and portions of Marion and Polk fare similarly. Indeed, in almost every county of the valley there are localities where the yield will be cut down. But there will still be a large surplus after discounting all losses in particular localities. From Walla Walla and the wheat region of the upper Columbia there probably will be as large a surplus for shipment as last year, notwithstanding the fact that in some places there is partial or total failure. Two adverse circumstances go together this year, a smaller crop than was anticipated and a prospect of low prices. On the whole it is pretty evident that we shall not have so prosperous a season as that of last year. It remains to be ascertained what damage will follow the Indian raid. This, though it will be local, is likely to be quite severe on the immediate sufferers from it.

An official report says there are many millions of silver dollars in the treasury. Frequent statements have been published to the effect that the treasury department cannot get the silver dollars into general circulation. Paid out for any purpose they are bought up at once by brokers, and come back into the treasury through the custom houses. Thus the new dollar, which was to be so great a benefit to the people, merely affords the brokers a new chance for speculation. The general commercial circulation positively refuses to absorb any portion of the new silver coinage, hence accumulation in the treasury goes on. Taking at their word the advocates of silver who proclaimed that the new and cheap dollar would be just as good as gold, the treasury insists on treating it as if it were on an actual equality with gold, but nobody wants to pay gold for it at par, and hence it only circulates between the brokers and the customs. The cheaper money would drive out both gold and greenbacks. Experience already proves the silver law a failure. An eastern journal says: "Thus early in the practical operation of the silver bill is illustrated the inconsistency of the silver men who claimed to be sound economists. The treasury has carried out their scheme precisely, making silver equal in value with gold, and the new coinage finds no takers. One can understand the position of the swindlers who wanted to pay a debt of a dollar with ninety cents worth of silver better than that of the pseudo economists who proposed to make the silver and gold dollar of the same value, and then expected anybody to take the former."

Speaking of the operations against the Indians, the Salem Mercury expresses an [illegible] that the revolt will not soon be [illegible] the United States troops because [illegible] soldiers have never yet accomplished [illegible] in this kind of fighting. On the contrary it has been proven by a long course of experience that regular soldiers are the most effective force that can be used for Indian warfare. The reasons are not far to seek. Thorough discipline is the [illegible]. Strict obedience to orders is the foundation of the system. The officers in command are men of intelligence and force of character, and [illegible] confidence on the part of enlisted men [illegible] supported by reliance on the judgment and personal intrepidity of the officers. Men who are well drilled and under strict discipline, directed by officers who are accustomed to the exercise and responsibility of command, can be led into and straight through dangers and hardships which undisciplined men would never undergo. Coming up with Indians the regular troops promptly attack and fight it through without stopping to count the cost. A force of volunteers hastily enlisted without discipline, unaccustomed to their officers and untaught by service together to rely on each other, would not rout the Indians by resolute attack as the troops under Howard [illegible] in the quality of personal bravery the volunteers as a class might be fully equal to any troops in the world. But it is the system that makes the soldier. After the outbreak of the great civil war it was two years before military discipline brought the army up to a real state of efficiency.

A Republican was elected to the office of superintendent of public instruction, and the Standard now wants the office abolished. But had the Democratic candidate (Stiles) been elected it would resent such proposition as a blow at the party and treason to the expressed will of the people, to say nothing of the outrage on an estimable Democrat. The same paper—since its editor was not elected printer—says that the legislature must cut down the amount of printing, and that very little printer's work will be needed anyhow. We believe fully in retrenchment, but now just for change let the organ suggest a reduction of the emoluments of some office to which a Democrat is elected. How would it do, for instance, to cut off those perquisites which the governor has, including the increased pay of his private secretary.

Between the Indian bureau and a partisan congress the country is having trouble enough. The former defends itself at length in relation to the present troubles, which it says have grown out of dissatisfaction caused by the failure of the government to carry out its contract in good faith. This failure it charges directly to the refusal of the house to make proper appropriations. On the plea of "economy" the Bannack appropriation was cut down to about four and a half cents per day for the subsistence of each Indian, whereby a few thousand dollars was saved for the time being, but at the expense of an Indian war which is costing the treasury perhaps a million dollars and the people of Idaho, Oregon and Washington an inconceivable sum besides, and many lives into the bargain. This is the outcome of political demagogy.

The invention of the microphone, which is credited to Edison, is also claimed by Prof D E Hughes of London. There is a sharp controversy about it. Edison's statement is that he informed Hughes in a private letter of his achievement, which information before it had been made public in England the professor seized his chance to improve and turn to his own gain by publishing the discovery and claiming it as his own. Hughes was charged with piracy, but, in a message by cable, denied the impeachment. Edison has come out with a rejoinder, in which a great array of pointed facts in proof of the theft is presented.

In Alex Stephens' district fourteen Democratic journals have denounced his course in regard to the Potter investigation and declared their purpose to defeat him for congress. But he stoutly accepts the gage of battle and says the people may decide the issue at the polls. He and his friends in the district will see that the negroes have a fair show to vote this time. It is only necessary for him to [illegible] off about two thousand Democratic votes to make [illegible] election certain.

The drouth is somewhat affecting our crop this year, but in some of the other states there is danger of far greater proportionate loss from heavy and continuous rains concurring with hot, sultry weather and occasional high winds. This is the case to a considerable extent in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa.

In noticing Tom Merry's paper the Inland Empire we omitted to say that it is Democratic in politics. But the editor says it will be an industrial journal rather than a political organ—and that statement is the offspring of mighty good sense.

A Noted Ballot Box Stuffer

(Cincinnati Special to Chicago Tribune.)

Eph Holland, the celebrated ballot box stuffer, to whose professional efforts Gen Banning owes his seat in congress, has repudiated the Democrats and announces that he will hereafter carry his ward solid for the Republicans. Holland has for years had almost entire control of the fourth ward in this city, which has regularly given a Democratic majority of 600 or 800. By way of testing his strength in the ward after his late release from jail, he allowed his name to be used for a delegate to the Democratic state convention. As a result he was elected by a majority of 600 votes. He did not go to Columbus and he says did not intend to go from the first, but his seat was declared vacant by the Hamilton county delegation, who were afraid to carry his name. In consequence of this insult Holland and his friends have resolved to bolt, and it is not improbable that they may thus decide the next political contest in Cincinnati and cause the defeat of Savier and Banning for congress. Holland has never yet told the true story of the expenditure of the $7000 corruption fund sent to Cincinnati by Tilden, and Republicans here entertain a hope that he may yet be induced to fill the blanks in his testimony. He has stated since his release that his year in jail was one of the most profitable, financially, of his life. He was paid handsomely for protecting the Democrats who were behind him in the election frauds of 1876, and if he should conclude to talk he will tell an interesting story.

[illegible] gentleman who is probably Mr Blaine's most intimate personal and political friend: Had Blaine been president would he not have done about what Hayes has? And so nearly as we can recall it the answer substantially was: As to withdrawing the troops and a generous policy to the south, yes, and he would have kept the Republican party with him. Mr Hayes could have done this had he had the right executive qualities. But the fact is he is not fit for president, never was and never will be. He commenced an administrative programme which required a great man and a great executive to carry out, and he is neither the one nor the other.

RECLAMATION OF LANDS

The following [illegible] is from the Puget Sound Dispatch [illegible]

During the past six years some ten thousand acres of tide lands in What[illegible] and Snohomish [illegible] Washington territory have [illegible] from the grasp of the sea and made to yield [illegible] The export of oats from Puget sound last year was over seven thousand tons shipped to San Francisco alone to say nothing of the amount consumed in the towns about the Sound Add to this the grass grown on these [illegible] for hay and we have a large return for the investment At the same time this kind of farming requires a great amount of capital as every rod of earth cast into the [illegible] embankments costs at least twenty three cents Yet if a man is lucky enough to get three years without having a crevasse in his levee he will be able to repay all he throws to necessary improvement [illegible] Puget sound and in the deltas of the Sacramento

In Eastern Oregon and Washington territory the word reclamation means something entirely different from this Here the great floods of our vast river bring down countless tons of sand from the Rocky Mountains which are deposited along the banks and blown in every direction by the strong summer winds that draw though the canyons as though they were so many funnels [illegible] the vast sand dunes along the Columbia all the way from Hood river to Fort Colville These lands can be reclaimed and utilized for agriculture just as well as the tide lands of Puget Sound and although it does not require any such pecuniary outlay as the tide embankment scheme yet the return is slower and it requires a greater stock of patience

In 1865 the late Samuel Butterworth of San Francisco was traveling abroad and discovered in France that instead of barren chalk cliffs and loose sand spits entering into the sea as in England the land was fertile almost to the verge of the breakers On his inquiring the cause of this he was shown the herb or shrub known as yellow lupine through which these lands had been converted from sandy wastes into profitable fields of grass and potatoes He instantly conceived the idea of reclaiming the sand hills about San Francisco by this process and to day the Golden Gate Park a dreary waste transformed into a blooming garden stands as a monument to the sagacity of this energetic man The yellow lupine starts slowly and even matures slowly hence it has to be sown with rye which grows faster and makes a rank stalk to protect the young lupine from the encroachments of the sand

But once the lupine gets up above the ground it can not only protect itself at all hazards but it absorbs all the life of the rye and soon turns it yellow In the fall the lupine sheds its old leaves and new ones begin to sprout while the old ones form a rich paste like muck and cover the ground At the end of five years the lupine dies having fulfilled its mission The ground must now be sown with grass and harrowed over for no plowing is needed Up comes a rich crop and the once barren plains glow with verdure Such is the history of Golden Gate Park the greatest pride of San Francisco and such too will be the history of the lands along the Columbia river If our people will only take hold of the matter with a determination to go in and win More than a million acres between here and the mouth of Snake river now await the touch of some magical hand which will make blades of grass grow where none grew before The seed of this plant may be obtained free from the patent office at Washington

What Vanderbilt Controls.

[From the New York Graphic]

Great possessions rapidly accumulate Wm H Vanderbilt now controls much vaster properties than his father ever did He seems to be virtually manager of the following corporations

	Capital Stock
New York Central railroad	$ 89 4[illegible]8 300
New York & Harlem railroad	[illegible] 0 000
Lake Shore & Michigan Southern R R	49 4[illegible] 500
Canada Southern railroad	1[illegible] 000 000
Michigan Central railroad	18 [illegible] 204
Rochester & State Line railroad	2 500 000
Western Union Telegraph Company	33 [illegible] 4 6
Atlantic & Pacific Telegraph Company	15 000 000
Total capital	$2[illegible] 070 4 9

The bonded debt of these great roads may be nearly as much more and although this cannot be said to be distinctly subject to his control its value depends almost entirely on his sagacity and skill This is a tremendous property for one man to direct and it is constantly being augmented, either by commercial increase or by the accession of new roads

Chicago and St Louis.

[From the Chicago Tribune.

Some time ago we warned the people of St Louis that they were making a great mistake in allowing their directory man to compile his work before the appearance of the Chicago directory because not knowing the real number of our population they might fall short whereas by waiting they would have the advantage of adding sufficient Smiths Joneses and Thompsons and taking in sufficient cemeteries to overtop our pile It has happened just as we expected It now appears that we have an excess of 45 487 names over St Louis Even allowing 3½ persons to a name, instead of 5 as they do in St Louis we have a total population of 537 624 as compared with 378 420 in that city,—an excess of 159,204 in our favor

The Title all Right.

[From the Chicago Times]

The title of Washington was no better than and no different from the title of Hayes In both cases and in all cases the title of the president has begun with has proceeded out of and has rested upon, the exercise by the representative assembly of the nation of the supreme, conclusive power of the presidential election

After laughing very heartily at your remarks to Salem Workingman and your really ingenious and amusing reference of him with his difficulties to a consultation with me for answer allow me to ask in behalf of fair play a part of a column to solve his difficulties. You are very welcome to use my name whenever you can thereby point a moral or adorn a tale But you cannot be so unjust as to refuse me sometimes a hearing from your immense audience over my own signature

You say Workingman wants to know of you (and you send him to me) how he can best lay the foundation for future success including wealth influence and distinction If the question were not too serious to admit of a joke I would say let him become an editor But seriously I will take up the case of a young industrious ambitious working man with a head on him like the journeyman printer Franklin he has worked through schools and got a good substantial education [illegible] true love of country and philanthropy, to the manor born he really and sincerely desires to serve his fellow men he is not selfish but loves truth and justice and proposes to work for them against errors and wrongs.

Let this young man at once commence the advocacy of a national reform law, which I will here draw up in substance for his general guidance, as great principles as you call them

An act relegating the American people back upon the foundation of their Republic declaring and establishing the equality of the people and of the rights specified in their constitution, guaranteeing to each and all of them life liberty and the pursuit of happiness inalienable limiting capital in its relations to finance and monopoly and protecting labor

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives

Sec 1 That the law creating the national banks is hereby repealed and the system abolished No money shall be hereafter issued or created by states or individuals but only by congress

Sec 2 That congress shall authorize the issue of national greenback paper money equivalent in all respects with gold and silver coin and limited (for say ten years) to forty dollars per capita of the American people This money shall be put in circulation by paying off the highest interest bearing bonds of the government The principal in greenbacks, the interest in coin

Sec 3 That interest on the use or forbearance of money shall hereafter be limited to 4 per cent per annum Parties may contract for lower rates but not for higher under the penalties of usury

Sec 4 That ten hours work shall constitute a day's labor the minimum price of compensation to be as follows For each laborer per day one dollar for skill in common labor, two dollars for skilled mechanical labor three dollars for professional labor five dollars parties may contract for higher wages but not for lower under penalties of fine and imprisonment

Sec 5 Universal education and universal homesteads are hereby decreed and congress shall enact laws specifically providing for the education of all children to read write and cipher and for the head of each family to have exempt from debt or involuntary sale a homestead of the value of one thousand dollars It may be a house and lot or house and garden or farm land not exceeding five acres

Sec [illegible] Railroad corporations are hereby declared to be common carriers as under the common law and they shall be subject to such just laws and regulations regarding freight and passengers and way discriminations as congress or the state legislatures may enact for the public good

Sec [illegible] Prison labor shall be employed upon public roads and public improvements

Now, let our young friend go before the next legislature of Oregon and get himself elected to the U S senate, in place of some old fogy party man that can do no good Let him from that high and efficient standpoint, work for the above great principles for the next six years and get them enacted into laws whereby the people will cease to pay banks a heavy bonus for banking and will get the benefit of all lost or burned money, whereby they will soon have money enough in circulation to do the proper business of a great country and avoid universal bankruptcy, whereby contractors will have a basis of wages in the employment of their laborers upon which they can calculate in taking jobs, and whereby labor will be assured of bread, whereby every citizen will strive to have a homestead, families will be educated up to a business stand point prison labor will become punishment and a thing of dread by the breaking of stone in quarries to macadamize our public roads $100 000 000 a year of interest on the bonds be saved the payment of taxes equalized to all the tariff adjusted to a peace basis and communism be stayed because justice will be done to all classes, capital will cease to rush into banks and brokerage by interest being reduced to European rates and will seek investment in business enterprises that will give employment to labor and thus all our people can live and our nation will be truly the republic our fathers founded and not a poorhouse institution or ape of the aristocracies and peasantry the nobility and serfs of the old world from which our fathers fled and to which baleful condition capital and monopoly unrestrained are fast returning us Our young man working thus will achieve the success his enlarged mind will covet or failing will receive the welcome the angel gave Ben Adhem and in either case his cross is his crown, his life will have been well spent

A word for myself You seem unwilling to give me the full honors of my title of "judge" I beg you to believe that it is not usurped but is a token of merit I acquired it in California in '49 I have my title from the bar instead of the bench and I hope you will not belittle it any more

BEAUTY:

OR, THE

Secret of a Fair Face.

An Item of Interest to Every Lady who Desires to be More Beautiful than she now is.

Unfortunately not one woman in a hundred, subjected to the whims of an American climate, possesses that basis and starting point of real beauty—a pure and clear complexion. What nature has thus denied, art must be called upon to furnish. It can be done, it is done daily Prof W E Hagan placed beauty within the reach of every unblessed daughter of Eve when he discovered that surprising article known in fashionable circles as the true secret of beauty, and called

MAGNOLIA BALM

The MAGNOLIA BALM is a sure device for creating a pure and blooming complexion. It conceals all natural blemishes in the most surprising and effective manner It removes all roughness, eruptions, redness, blotches freckles, and tan with magical power It drives away all evidence of fatigue and excitement. It makes the plainest face beautiful. It gives the complexion a dazzling purity and makes the neck, face and arms appear graceful, rotund and plump. It makes a matron of 35 or 40 look not more than 20 years old, and change the rustic maiden in to a cultivated city belle.

The Magnolia Balm removes all blemishes and conceals every drawback to beauty, and, while it is as harmless as water it is so life-like in its effects that the closest observer cannot detect its use. Ladies who want to make themselves attractive can make an absolute certainty of it by using HAGAN'S MAGNOLIA BALM and we know of no other [illegible] It is the cheapest preparation in the world all things considered and may be had at any drug store

THE LADY'S ROCK

Day by day in sun or shade
Gliding down the wooded glade
Crossing by the stepping stones
Where the bright beck chafes and moans
Passing where the light wind stirs
To gleaming gold the clustered furze
O'er the common past the pond
To the hollowed banks beyond
Where the tall green rushes grow
And the great tides ebb and flow
O'er the reach of brown ribbed sand
By the wings of sea mews fanned
The black robed lady sought the rocks
Gray and grim from ocean's shocks

Day by day in sun or shade
There her nest the lady made
Seeking in her heavy sorrow
Nature's quiet aid to borrow
Words of comfort stung or jarred
Words of cheering sounded hard,
Words of hope but mocked her grief
Words of love brought no relief
Till at last they let her be,
Left her to the sky and sea
Left the weary heart and head
With the Past and with the Dead
Stood apart while to her soul
Peace and patience softly stole

Hush! the wavelets whispered sweet,
Curving, creaming to her feet
Hush the soft winds seemed to say
Sweeping ever o'er the bay
Hush! the sunshine smiled at rest,
On the great sea's heaving breast
Hush! the gray clouds breathed around
Soothing all to lull profound
So the days crept one by one,
Till her silent lesson done
Turning to the world again
She took up its joy and pain
Strong for conflicts yet to be,
From commune with the sky and sea

Ofttimes all stunned and crushed
Heart and spirit lie in dust
Cannot rouse again to strife
Cannot face the fret of life
Cold and dull to sympathy,
Dead to all but misery
Let them be Let Nature make
Her own cure of pang and ache
Her soft charm will lap them round
Calm the fever stanch the wound
Wash away the scalding tears
Take the poison from the years
Lead them back by faith and love,
To work on earth and hope above

—All the Year Round

THE STORY OF A MAD LOVER

Do people often wonder at their own happiness? Certainly I was wondering at mine as I sat alone in my pretty drawing room resting back in my chair, allowing my Berlin work to fall unheeded on my lap while my eye wandered here and there, surveying with fond pride my possessions

Many of the pictures on the wall the bronzes on the mantel, the clock a chair here and there, had been bridal presents and as only one short year had passed since I came to my kingdom I had had no time to weary

A year ago, and I had then thought myself a happy girl I had yet to learn the full happiness which comes to every loved and loving wife, but I had especial cause for gratitude in a fact which might present pain

Before I met Will, my husband, I had been engaged to a young man, by a very few years my senior, when some one discovered his father and grandfather before him had died inmates of a lunatic asylum

My parents immediately broke off the engagement, and I was too sensible not to bow to their decree For a time I was very miserable but soon after I met Will and learned that into his keeping had passed the one true love of my life, and he held it so tenderly, so sacredly, that soon there was not even a scar to mark the old wound

But the tears came freely to my eyes nor did Will reproach me with them when, some six months after my marriage I learned in the full flush of my happiness, that Victor Struthers' sad fate had overtaken him and that he, too had followed in the steps of those gone before that never again the light of reason would shine within his eyes or the words of love he so well knew how to utter fall from his lips

These thoughts slowly come back to-night as I sit alone—the first evening I had spent alone since my marriage, but Will had been called away by important business, and would not be back until late, perhaps not until to morrow.

Once more the tears came within my eyes as I contrasted my lot with Victor's, or shuddered at the fate which would have been mine had I followed my first mad impulse to be his at any cost

Yet, had not the loss of the girl he loved hastened his doom? The physicians said not but their verdict would not satisfy my nervous dread. I sighed a long, tremulous sigh at this latter thought.

And surely—was it imagination?—somewhere within the room the sigh was re echoed.

We had in the month of roses two long French windows, draped with blue satin and lace, opened on a verandah which, as the evening was cool, were closed and fastened, but as I glanced round, with a strange misgiving at my heart, I saw the folds of one tremble.

The window must then be open, yet I felt no air

With this thought I arose from my seat stepping forward to ascertain the cause, but had barely taken a single step when I stopped, my blood frozen, unable to make another movement or even part my lips to scream for help

On the blue surface was a man's hand—no ruffian's hand, but white and handsome

A ring gleamed on one of the fingers, and on its luster my eyes rested, fascinated as the dove by the serpent. Where had I seen that ring before? Somewhere, surely, though where my tortured mind could not reason

Then summoning all my strength and courage, with desperate effort I turned to leave the room Once put a closed door between myself and that white hand whose invisible owner might at any moment step from his concealment, and I might know what best could be done.

Now I was blind with terror, and could scarcely see, though the room was brilliantly lighted, to grope my way to the door

At last, I approached it, and stretched out my arm to open the way to freedom, when five white fingers, one bearing the gleaming ring, were laid on mine, and slowly drew me back into the room

'Look at me?' said a voice 'It is your work—you need not fear"

Then I realized the truth, and, glancing up, saw Victor Struthers standing before me

My first sensation was of relief His eyes peering into mine, were lit by the old softness around his mouth was the old smile and, though his words were bitter, his handsome face was only kind.

Could he be mad?

Or had recovery come to him, spite of the physician's hopeless decree?

I laughed a nervous laugh as I answered 'How could you so startle me Victor? What a strange way to pay me a visit? Surely you could not doubt your welcome?

'I have not yet received it," he replied "though I have walked 100 miles that he might give it to me I take no welcome but the old one, Elsie."

And he stooped as if to kiss me but I drew back shuddering

'What? no greeting?" he exclaimed, and slowly there crept into his eyes a look I had never seen there before—a look of cunning and of mortal dread

He glanced round the room

'I have waited so long—waited to find you alone We are going on a journey to night, you and I, Elsie But you will not fear it you are with me even if Death be the boatman to row us across Listen Elsie I am tired of life But one thing only has made me cling to it so long, and that is the gates of Heaven would not open to receive me unless you were by my side, so I have come for you

In that moment I knew the truth—knew that this man by my side quiet as he was was indeed mad, ready at any moment to throw off even this mask of sanity and seize me in his powerful grasp

Once more I glanced around my pretty room

My husband's eyes looked into mine from his portrait on the wall as if to say 'For my sake darling keep calm All rests with you Do not let me return to find a desolate home with your blood staining the threshhold"

'Victor,' I said suddenly 'before we go on this journey, tell me of yourself—of all you have been doing

'Of myself? What is there to tell?' he questioned with rising passion in his voice. 'Of what I have been doing I shall indeed tell you! Working for this hour slaving for it enduring for it, with but one ambition in the wretched struggle they call life—to meet you face to face to look into your eyes as they rested on your work to tell you of the burning brain which could find no relief in tears, the weight of iron breaking the heart on which your hand has placed it Ah! it is a little hand white and fair clasping it within his own—even to lift so monstrous a weight yet you placed it well not missing a single nerve—slender pretty fingers but oh so cruel! I see have you no remorse

'Victor you are the cruel one you to me unjust unworthy of yourself

'And justice What do you know of the world You who sit here in your beautiful home and let the world go by unheeded and [illegible] What memory had you for the man you had doomed whose struggles [illegible] I saw him kiss you last night the man you call your husband forgetting my right [illegible] in the sight of heaven that you are my wife you rested on his arm you laid your head upon his [illegible] looking with a loving eyes into his face You whispered words of love in his ear but for the first time I would have killed him but that I wanted you [illegible] I said darling [illegible]' his voice suddenly sinking from fierce anger to its old tenderness

At any moment he might draw the concealed weapon from his pocket at any moment plunge the dagger into my heart

A scream a struggle would but make sure my fate

What was to be done

'Victor' I said with [illegible] trembling [illegible] and we have [illegible]

He glanced with keen suspicion into my face

'And you love me?' he questioned

'How dare you then give your kisses to that other the kisses which belonged to me! Listen We have no time to spare Already they are on my track To night I saw them but their eyes failed to find me They call me mad yet I outwit them Nor do I find it such a difficult task Yet if once they seize me they will bear me back to the place from which I have fled But not alive oh not alive! See Elsie' throwing back his coat and disclosing the long narrow gleaming blade he had concealed there 'First your heart then mine You grow pale you tremble It will soon be over A moment's pang, eternal happiness——'

His arm is thrown tight around me

I am powerless even to struggle in his iron clasp His words fall hissing one by one on the still air Darkness is gathering around me—the darkness of despair

The little clock on the mantel chimes eleven and I remember, with a thrill of horror it is the last time I shall ever hear it strike, when outside sounds a cheery whistle and a step I recognize as my husband's upon the pavement

His firm manly tread is unmistakable I can fancy his glancing up at the lighted windows shining forth their welcome for him Another moment his latch key will be in the door

'Victor' I exclaimed, 'I hear them coming He the spy, is on your track Conceal yourself where you were before I will mislead him and return to you For my sake be quick'

At these last words his hold relaxes The old cunning leaps to his eyes

'For your sake' he whispers

With a sudden spring he is again hidden behind the folds of the curtain and in that moment my husband entered the room, and I rushed to the shelter of his arms

"My darling what is it?" Will explains 'What has happened? I found these men watching the house and they insist a mad man intrusted to their care has entered here I of course, have given them permission to search——'

I try to speak but cannot

The words die in my throat as I point tremblingly, to the curtain where I can discern peering through Victor's gleaming eyes

'Traitress!' I hear him exclaim and as the men sprang forward there follows a dull fall

Poor fellow! He has taken his sad journey alone.

In his frenzy he has plunged the steel through his own heart.

For weeks I, too, hovered on the grave's brink but my husband's tender love and care won me back to life and together we often visit one solitary mound in the churchyard where we ever place fresh flowers, with the prayer that he who sleeps at last found the journey, even as he thought "but one step in eternal happiness

has made a specialty in the treatment of the following diseases Catarrh Bronchitis and all diseases of the throat and chest by an entirely new system only known to himself Diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs including Spermatorrhea Seminal Weakness or premature loss of Manhood In the treatment of these diseases he has made a world wide reputation by his astonishing success not only on this Coast but throughout the whole United States Diseases of the stomach bowels liver and kidneys as well as all diseases of the blood and skin he has become master of and never fails to give relief at once and permanently cures the case if he is applied to in time
